Futurebuilders England and Adventure Capital Fund Information Sharing Policy

The Futurebuilders Fund has been under the management of the Adventure Capital Fund (ACF) since 1 April 2008. The investment funds, staff teams and processes of the two organisations remain separate and all investment decisions are made through each organisation's own governance structures.

If an organisation applies to Futurebuilders or ACF for funding, the information provided in support of the application will not be shared between the two funds without the express permission of the applicant organisation.

The purpose of any such request to share information will be to ensure that as complete a picture is known of the organisation in order to enable the respective funds to make fully informed decisions on an application. If an organisation is already in receipt of funds from either Futurebuilders or ACF and is making a further application for new funding, information sharing may be requested so that the funds are placed in the best possible position to be able to continue to support the organisation.

This policy has been agreed by both Futurebuilders and ACF and will be kept under review.
